ASCG continues training for VIP Operator in Kazakhstan

Active Aviation Training, part of Active Solutions Consulting Group, has been contracted by Prime Aviation from Almaty, Kazakhstan to deliver instructor training to their team of Cabin Crew Trainers.

ASCG will be providing services to the training team out in Almaty in September 2009. The courses that will be delivered will include Training and Instructional Techniques and Safety and Emergency Procedures (SEP) Standards for Instructors.

Prime Aviation is a VIP operator with a fleet of BBJ, Challengers, Gulfstream and Hawker jets. It is the first and only commercial operator of western aircraft and in addition to its VIP flight services also specialises in the sale, acquisition management and charter of aircraft.

Previously ASCG has been involved in delivering Initial and Conversion courses for their Cabin Crew workforce who attended all training in the UK.

All training delivered is tailored to specific requirements set by Prime and in line with the information depicted in their Operations and Cabin Crew Manuals.

ASCG works with a range of private operators in meeting specific training and consultancy requirements, offering both modular training in a variety of subjects and also full courses that meet all the requirements of operators and regulators. Over the years ASCG Instructors have been involved in training related to Gulfstream, Beechcraft and BBJ VIP aircraft.
